

REDUCING TAXES IN YOUR RETIREMENT

ADVISORY GROUP
OF THE ROCKIES

Taxes. Should we just stop here? Let's chalk them up to a necessary evil.

AGR The Good

- They fund infrastructure projects, provide community-related services, bolster health and safety measures, and give our children access to experiences we may not have had ourselves.

AGR The Bad

- We may feel that we pay more than our fair share. Uncle Sam may spend our tax dollars on initiatives and budgetary items we don't agree with. There may also be no direct impact we see in a timely manner. Whatever the case, taxes do make our wallets lighter.

Taxes don't magically disappear or may not even reduce in retirement. It's common for individuals to assume the taxes they owe will decrease in retirement because they are no longer employed, but that isn't always the case:

AGR Deductions, credits, and other tax benefits may be limited or not available once you're retired.

AGR Retirement plan(s) you've saved in for years may be fully taxable when you withdraw funds.

AGR Social Security and other pension income used to bridge your cash flow needs may be taxable.

Phase

Accumulation: Tax-Deductible Contributions

Growth: Tax-Deferred

Distribution: Taxed, Ordinary Income

Summary

You may have saved in this account(s) through your employer for years.

Often, these retirement plans had employer matches, profit-sharing, or other incentives. An IRA is not an employer plan, but has similar tax characteristics. For complete details and comparison, please talk with us.

Possible Tax-Savings Strategies

AGR Net Unrealized Appreciation

AGR Qualified Leverage Strategy

AGR Roth Conversion

AGR Qualified Charitable Distributions

Asset

Roth 401(k), Roth IRA, Cash Value Life Insurance

Phase

Accumulation: Post-Tax Contributions

Growth: Tax-Deferred

Distribution: Tax Free

Summary

The Roth option allows you to contribute after-tax money into your retirement accounts. Only the Roth IRA has income phase-outs, which means it may not have been/be available to you. Cash Value Life Insurance distributions may be taxable if policy is terminated instead of using loans to fund cash flow needs. Talk to us about the specifics.

SO, WHAT CAN I DO ABOUT THIS?

So, if we must pay taxes, is there anything we can do to pay something more in line with our “fair share”? Absolutely – it takes ongoing education, careful planning, and effective communication between you and us.
